The memorial service of next Monday night will be held, not in Carnegie Hall, but in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The late Colonel Astor owned pews in Trinity Chapel and St. Thomas's Church. and it was said yesterday he might have owned them in other churches. Many things favorable to him were heard by church people, among them that he gave far more liberally to religious purposes than he was known to do. He was recently re-elected a vestryman of Messiah Church, Rhinebeck, a church which he built almost wholly.
So great was the interest and so close the cause, that late last night it was decided that St. Thomas's Church, Fifth avenue and 53d street, would have a regular memorial service for the Titanic dead to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. While St. Thomas's Church, to which belong several persons who were on the ship, in tended to have such service, it was feared at first that the feeling at the moment was almost too tense.
